At the dealership where I work, part of my job is to diagnose what ails a car. One cool day a customer came in saying her car wasn't heating properly. I decided to take it for a road test, but as we rounded the car to get in, I immediately spotted the problem---the rear window was wide open.

How does God know the good people from the bad people? Do you tell Him or does he read it in the Newspaper?

I was at a store register, when I decided to move ahead by squeezing between my shopping cart and the counter. The man bagging looked at me, then at the space through which I was trying to maneuver.

In a matter-of-fact tone he commented, "In your dream; Honey."

Spotted on a bumper sticker: "Forget about World peace- Visualize Using Your Turn Signal!"

A couple of rookie police officers found three hand grenades in the street and decided to take them to the police station. "What if one of them explodes"? Asked a young officer.

"It doesn't matter," reassured the other. "We'll say we only found two."

Occasionally some of our cattle would get out of the pasture and my mom would call my dad at his office in town to come home to the farm and round them up. But one day Dad couldn't get away, so Mom had to go round them up herself. When Dad and I got home that evening, we immediately went to check on the cattle—and found our neighbor's cattle safely locked in our barn.

At a farmer's market, my wife and I had selected a nice watermelon. "What a friendly place this is," my wife commented, noting that many people were smiling at us. At home, while putting away all our other purchases, I began to laugh. "I think I know why people were smiling at us," I told my wife.

Then I looked down at the sticker that had come off the watermelon and had stuck on the front of my pants. It said, "Seedless."

At the supermarket, I noticed that several boxes of cereal on the shelf were past their expiration dates. When I called this to the manager's attention, she gave me a dollar coupon as a reward. When I handed the check-out cashier the coupon, he said: "I'm sorry, I can't accept this. It expired ten months ago."

Farm Boy

A little farm boy comes down to breakfast, his mother asks if he had his chores done, "Not yet" said the boy. His mother tells him no breakfast until he does his chores. Well, he's mad, so he goes to feed the chickens, and he kicks a chicken. He goes to feed the cows, he kicks a cow. He goes to feed the pigs, and kicks a pig. He goes in for breakfast and his mom gives him a bowl of dry cereal. "How come I don't get any eggs & bacon? Why don't I have milk on my cereal?" he asks.

"Well," his mother says, I saw you kick a chicken so no eggs, I saw you kick a cow so no milk. I saw you kick a pig so no bacon. So for a week you are not getting any bacon, eggs or milk."

Just then, his father comes down for breakfast and he kicks the cat halfway across the kitchen.

The little boy looks at his mother with a smile, and says: "Are you going to tell him, or should I?"

"I've learned that you get the rewards of love by giving love."
